DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 3 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 3 and 13 are vague and indefinite because the term "dimethylaminoethanol" lacks antecedent basis.

Claims 7 and 16 are rejected because the phrase "derivatives thereof" renders the claims vague and indefinite. It is not clear from the specification as to how to ascertain the scope of the "derivatives" of alpha-hydroxy acids. Similarly, the term "natural plant extracts" is also not clearly defined in the disclosure and renders the claims vague and indefinite.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

(A) Claims 1-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102 (a) and (e) as anticipated by U.S. Pat.

No. 6,162,419 issued to Perricone.

'419 describes topical ascorbyl compositions for treating and/or preventing sunburn. See abstract; col. 1, line 4- col. 3, line 8. The solvents for the composition comprise 0.1 – 5% by weight of dimethylaminoethanol and up to about 10 % by weight of tyrosine. See col. 3, line 10 – 51; col. 5, line 35 – col. 6, line 12. The reference also illustrates the examples of formulation for cream and gel. See Examples in columns 7 – 12. The composition in the examples comprise the skin irritating ingredients including glycolic acid, urea, titanium dioxide, grapeseed and green tea extract which are encompassed by the instant claims 6, 7, and 16. See Example 1, Formulation 3; col. 6, lines 13 – 44. It is further disclosed that the composition may be incorporated in soaps and cleaners that come in contact with skin when used. See col. 5, lines 8 – 18.

It is examiner's position that the limitation of claims 1 and 11 that the composition is used for ameliorating redness or inflammation of skin, and irritating effects caused by irritant in the composition anticipated because the claimed function of the composition is inherent. For claims 8-10, ameliorating the inflammation due to contact with soaps or cleansers, rosacea, atopic dermatitis, or allergic skin reactions is also an inherent property of the composition disclosed in '419.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102/103

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

(B) Claims 1-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102 (b) as anticipated by, or in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as obvious over U.S. Pat. No. 5,643,586 issued to Perricone.

'586 describes method to treat aged skin and subcutaneous muscle by applying topical compositions containing 0.1 – 10 % by weight of catecholamine precursors. Tyrosine is a preferred catecholamine precursor in this invention. See abstract; col. 4, lines 7 - 34. The reference further teaches adding into the composition 3 % by weight of acetylcholine enhancer, preferably dimethylaminoethanol. See claim 4. Claims 7 and 16 in the instant application are rejected by the disclosure that the composition may also be formulated with alpha-hydroxy acids along with tocotrienol. See col. 7, lines 30-41.

Although the reference is not specifically directed to the application of the composition on the skin affected with inflammation, it is disclosed in the reference that the composition may be formulated and used as anti-inflammatory. See col. 9, lines 11 – 65. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have adapted the composition in Perricone to use it for inflammatory skin disease, as suggested by the reference.
